FEATURES OF HIS PERFORMANCE.

The Events That Will Round Out the Pleasures of the Season.

STRAUSS AND HIS DANCE ORCHESTRA

Little Otto Hegner, having fully proved his mettle in his two recitals here last month, was welcomed back to Pittsburgh on Thursday evening by an audience well representing our best citizens and comfortably filling Old City Hall.

- 1. Piano solo—Sonata, No. 3, Beethoven.
2. Violin solo—Legend, Wieniawski.
3. Piano solo—Concerto, Chopin.
4. Violin solo—Serenade, Mendelssohn.
5. Piano solo—Polka, Strauss.

QUAY IN PITTSBURGH.

The National Chairman Sees Some of His Friends—Mr. Dalzell Comes Out Openly Against Him—He Says a Quay Nominee Means Defeat in the State.

Senator M. S. Quay came up from Beaver yesterday morning to attend to some banking business, and incidentally to see some of the workers. He registered at the Seventh Avenue Hotel, and spent the day in receiving his friends.

Congressman Ray called on the Senator, and they talked for awhile over the postmaster at Montreal, but nothing definite was reached.

When seen by a DISPATCH man Mr. Quay, as usual, said he had nothing to give out for publication. Mr. Quay's attack on Dalzell did not seem to worry him at all.

The story which came from Philadelphia yesterday that Quay was disgusted with the management of Chairman Andrews while the National Chairman was in Florida, is generally discredited by the Senator's friends in Pittsburgh.

AN EXCITING ELECTION.

A railroad man said yesterday that now that the question of a differential on lake coal had been settled that the 40-mile railroad problem would be again taken up. Other officials are not so sanguine; in fact hope that the issue will never be revived.
